Why from India ?

Why from Sepra ?

India has undertaken a series of economic reforms towards opening up of the economy in the decade of the nineties. Notable among these has been the extensive effort to liberalize its international trade.

It is therefore expected that trade liberalization in India would have led to changes in the composition of exports so as to reflect India's comparative advantage in the global economy. It is important therefore, to explore the structure of comparative advantage of India and the extent to which India economy compete with each other in the global market for manufacturing sector commodities.

Major advantages :

- Low input costs.
- Highly-skilled professional sourcing .
- Incorporates the latest technology in any manufacturing industry.
- Having predominant strength in the agriculture and allied products category.

Our network in India makes it easier for us to source anything and makes us the right source for your requirements from India. All our sourcing is done by professional team.

A company like us can take care of sourcing of from manufacturing units which are most of the time in remote places where latest method of communication is lacking.

Prices will not increase when sourcing is through Sepra Exim ,as we save a lot of cost for manufacturing company in exporting/marketing their products and ultimately this benefit is passed onto our customers.

Our Quality Department handles products,which undergo stringent quality checks before they reach to our customers,whether the goods are being imported or exported.

Having a large database of almost all the industries in India,before submitting any offer,we make a thorough exercise on comparison of prices, quality and the general management of the company.

We constantly establish business and trading relationship with prominent Suppliers, manufactures and buyers.
